LIGHT AND GAS COMPANIES TO PUT UP NEW BUILDINGS.

Deals of the Past Few Days and Records of Mortgages and Transfers.

Work will begin to-morrow morning on the $10,000 addition to the Indianapolis Light | and most needs. He will have had an opand Power Company's plant on Kentucky avenue. The addition is to provide more room for machinery, and when completed return, if not a profounder scholar, at about 3,000 horse power will be added to the least a better citizen and a truer Americapacity of the plant. Besides this addition the smokestack will be raised seventyfive feet, making the total height 225 feet. This work will cost $5,000. Architects Bohlen & Son prepared the plans for the improvements. The same firm has prepared plans for the remodeling of the Hotel Ray at Shelbyville, which will be modernized at a cost of $10,000.

Work has begun on the three buildings plant at Langsdale avenue and the Big drawn by the Bohlens. The cost of the three buildings will be $40,000. The gas company will next erect two large holder tanks, one with a capacity of 3,000,000 feet and the other of 100,000. The cost of these tanks will be $200,000. Bohien & Son have also prepared plans for a modern residence for H. M. Smith at Greencastle that is to cost

Architect Hendrickson has prepared plans for a $10,000 brick block for J. B. Hann at College avenue and Twenty-second street. The building will be forty by sixty-five feet, three stories high and made into storerooms and flats. Mr. Hendrickson also has plans for a $4,000 double house for Turner D. Bottome on Walnut street near Massachusetts avenue, and plans for a $5,000 residence for Parvin Wright on Broadway between Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth streets. poem, or a strain of high music.

THE BRAVE WAY.

The Darkest Road May Be the One that Leads to Light.

We die each day to Something; it is he Who rises to renew the fight afresh,

Shall gain Eternity. Out near the eastern end of Long island, where the salt winds sweep the sand dunes, for the Indianapolis Gas Company's new and whence the long, dark bodies of the greyhounds of the sea may be seen as they hurry back and forth between the world's Four tracks, the plans for which were centers of art and trade, is a little house of the plainest make externally, which is home to a certain man and woman, and TRUST CO. their children. The stranger approaching it would unconsciously let the house out of his memory with the momentary thought BETWEEN THIRTY-THIRD AND THIRTY that it was the living place of one of those FOURTH STS.: 40x132; PRICE, $425. He GIN. who enters will probably never let the memory of the rooms leave him, if he can help. On all sides are visible the touches and trimming of choice taste; expressions in material form of fair thoughts and gentle tendencies. And how they charm, here and everywhere! Is there anything more | bargain. pleasing to all the senses than a room whose holdings reflect the thoughts and fine feelings of its occupant or its occupants? It is like a rare painting or a sweet

> The father of the family which lives here is the hero of a sad-ending romance-if what is told thereabouts be true. Years ago, it is said, he was promised to marry a, young woman of beauty and high social standing-like his own-in the city of their homes. Then the sunshine of the tale is clouded by a breach of love on the woman's part, and when the light again makes things visible we find the man put- REAL ESTATEting his learning and culture into the shaping and coloring and firing of clay, out near the end of Long island. Taking up the quiet, simple life of his suroundings; putting the best he had in him into an oven, to have it come out a failure often; a success seldom. He strove on. Little by little he brought his pieces nearer to the colors he had seen in his dreams, and, perhaps to help him forget the dull shadings of his past; perhaps to help him see the glorious colorings with which a life of loving companionship alone can adorn our doings, he chose the teacher of the village children to wed.

The years have come and gone. The secret of the colors which they held has been unfolded, and under the glaze of dainty vases and quaintly beautiful shapes of one use or another gleam rich, rare tones of the primal hues. The quiet island folk have seen little palaces built around their plain homes, and each summer brings its host of the city's fashlonables, who seek the cool and restful ocean. They have seen those creatures of culture and travel rave over the odd-colored bits of pottery which to them were only evidences of work and time wasted, and they have wondered at the much these same city folks have been willing to pay for this burnt clay. The man who holds his secret so close that he will not even have a helper, lest it be thus given out, has enough to follow the dictates of a gentle nature gently trained, and his home is a little heaven of beauty and happiness. It is all because he knew how to die to one of the greater of those deaths that Frank La Foe has purchased a property | come almost daily to most of us. Their on North Meridian street, near Twenty- name is thousands. Disappointment, sorrow, trouble, care, pain, bereavementthese are some of them. And when they come, as they do to all, are we to sink and let them hold us under the waters of resentment and bitterness until we drown, mentally and spiritually? Or shall we use all the strength we can muster to swim back to the ship from which we were tossed land in Pike township to Herman E. Mar- | we had planned? It is not for a wise man to question. I can only point to the potter Herman E. Martens has purchased two of whom you read here. It was doubtless put it into the vase, and out of the vase has grown and bloomed the very flower he sought, and lost awhile!
